

We build solutions your business actually needs.

We embed with your team, learn how you actually operate, and use AI to build cost-effective solutions that fit. Not added to your workflow, but woven into the way your team already works.

THE SHIFT

For the first time, small and mid-sized businesses can build what they actually need — custom software that fits. The cost of building the right tool has collapsed. What used to take a department now takes a small, embedded team and the right use of AI.

WHAT THIS MEANS

No more forcing your workflow into someone else's software. No more stitching together five tools that don't talk to each other. You get something built around how your team actually operates.

HOW WE WORK

Northwoods embeds with businesses to fix the process that's slowing everything down, and builds it with AI.

The AI tooling revolution has changed the economics of custom software. Small teams can now build better, faster, and cheaper than any traditional software shop. Northwoods doesn't just deliver solutions and move on. We stay embedded, supporting the work as your needs evolve. Your business is always changing, so the systems that support it should too.

Let's build something your team will use.
